In this seminar Anna will present key strategies for behaviour and sensory issues in the classroom and at home for students with Autism Spectrum Disorder.

Anna regularly presents in Australia and internationally on supporting children and adolescents with autism and her talk will be relevant and beneficial for parents, teachers and health professionals. Anna will cover areas such as: strategies for behaviour in the classroom and on the playground, school classwork refusal, strategies for tests and exams and how sensory tools can be incorporated. Anna will also discuss how students with ASD can use their special interests and obsessions in their learning, why they refuse to try anything new and how to counteract their need to be 'perfect'. Anna's talk will offer suggestions for using motivators and how they can work, plus strategies to help with transitions.
